OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Global equities rose in August as markets were bolstered by the impact of the massive fiscal and monetary stimulus from governments and central banks, further signs of a recovery in global economic growth, and the potential for COVID-19 vaccines in the near future. A resurgence in coronavirus cases in some European countries and parts of Asia increased the prospect of renewed measures that could impact the path of the global economic recovery. Despite this, economic indicators signalled that global growth continued to recover at a more moderate pace compared to the previous two months. US-China tensions escalated on several fronts, but the two countries reaffirmed their commitment to the phase-one trade deal. Within global fixed income, most global sovereign yields steepened, led by the US. The Fed's policy shift was interpreted as being more tolerant of higher inflation, causing a sell-off in longer-dated securities. High yield generated positive total returns following promising news on COVID-19 drug trials and agreement on the EU "Next Generation" recovery package.

Fund Performance. The fund decreased by 0.50% in August. Global fixed income detracted from performance driven by investment grade credit as longer-dated yields sold off.

Fund Strategy. As the coronavirus outbreak unfolded, we saw unprecedented volatility as markets sold off. During the onset of the crisis, our primary focus was to reduce overall fund exposure. Coming out of the sell-off, as the market stabilizes, we began adding back to both equity exposures and duration. Our longer-term outlook improved on positive news flow, and we subsequently increased the portfolio's volatility to allow the portfolio to participate in the market recovery while maintaining a conservative position. Overall, we think that the reasons for being more cautious have only grown in recent weeks given the market's sharp rally and the prospect of a slow economic recovery. Additionally, there are other risks to consider, including political risks such as US-China relations, Brexit and the US elections. We believe this market environment requires that income-oriented strategies concentrate less of their holdings in the lowest quality, least liquid securities that will be most exposed to increasing default rates, investor uncertainty and rising yields. Instead, income investors will be best served through a highly diversified portfolio of multi-asset income producing assets that can be dynamically adjusted as market conditions evolve.
