OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Asian equities finished up for the fourth month in a row supported by strong economic data in China and continued expectations of a truce in the US-China trade war. USD was marginally up on strong US economic data and a resilient stock market. Oil price also edged up further on the back of supply constraints. Against this backdrop, Singapore performed the best largely because index heavyweight banking names rallied on strong results. Taiwan outperformed led by technology on expectations of demand recovery. China was also ahead of the broader region although upside was capped by concerns of a potential halt in policy loosening. Meanwhile, Malaysia ended down as business conditions remain weak. India returned flattish as macro-economic data disappointed. Over the month, growth index performed better than value index.

Fund Performance. The fund performed in line with the benchmark. On the positive side, stock selection in financials added the most value. The strong results fuelled a catch-up rally after muted performance YTD. Top holding TSMC in Taiwan was another contributor as its latest results implied an end to the inventory correction by the middle of this year. On the negative side, stock selection in Korea hurt. KEPCO and Lotte Chemical were hit on weaker earnings due to higher oil price and lower chemical spreads respectively. With valuations at historical low and expected return at historical high, we remain comfortable with the holdings.

Fund Strategy. Global markets enjoyed a strong run year-to-date on the back of valuation recovery driven by lower risk perception on recession fears and US-China trade concerns. With the re-emergence of trade tensions, market is likely to consolidate and volatility is likely to pick up again. On the corporate front, the recent results season is holding up and showing some signs of recovery in selected countries or sectors. Overall, we believe Asia still offers an attractive investment case as the opportunity set continues to evolve. Our core strategy remains unchanged with a preference for both low beta and value. Low beta stocks have higher earnings and dividend visibility offering better downside protection while value stocks have priced in more uncertainties offering more re-rating potential. The combination of these two factors should allow us to outperform during initial upturn of cycle as well as late to down cycle.
