OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines rose by 0.47% in December as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields declined by an average of 5 basis points (bps) across the curve. For full-year 2020, the JACI Philippines returned 7.30%. Global risk-on sentiment continued into December following a democratic US presidential win and more positive developments on the coronavirus (COVID19) vaccine. News of significantly rising global infection rates in the final quarter of the year were largely overshadowed by announcements from three large pharmaceuticals that their formulations of the vaccine were effective in reducing symptomatic cases of the virus. Nevertheless, analysts continued to highlight a bumpy path to global growth recovery. Risk assets reacted favorably to the US election results as investors warmly welcomed the prospect of a less volatile presidency under democratic candidate Joe Biden. However, a conclusive democrat sweep would yet be determined by the run-off Senate election in Georgia on January 5. For the month, the benchmark 10-year US Treasury yield rose 10 basis points to close at the 0.94% level.

In the local economic space, November inflation came in at 3.3% year-on-year, significantly higher than the 2.6% median market projection and rising from October's 2.5% figure. Food inflation continued to spike, driven by supply constraints due to the effects of typhoons and flooding, while rising alcohol and tobacco prices also contributed to the increase in inflation. Nevertheless, risk sentiment was strong in December, as optimism surrounding developments in the COVID19 vaccine and the passage of local fiscal support measures and the signing of the 2021 national budget into law buoyed risk asset prices. Amidst a perceived stabilization in the local pandemic situation and in light of the significant monetary support already extended over the year, as well as the uptick in inflation, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) held its policy rate steady in its last meeting of the year. BSP Governor Benjamin Diokno stated that the central bank would keep its rates accommodative for the next two years, highlighting the need for economic growth and unemployment to revert to pre-pandemic levels before considering tightening policy.

Fund Performance. The Fund rose by 0.09% in December, ahead of its benchmark by 8 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its duration of less than 1 and will continuously look into corporate bonds for yield enhancement.
