OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines rallied 1.11% in February as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields fell by an average of 18 basis points across the curve, mostly on the long-end.

The US Treasury yield curve flattened as market players anxiously monitored developments on the coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak. While cases had been isolated mostly to China at the latter part of January, fears of contagion further heightened as new patients were diagnosed in various countries across the globe, including Japan, South Korea and Italy. Consequently, analysts recalibrated their yearly growth forecasts, taking into account lower consumer spending and overall output globally. The International Monetary Fund (IMF) slashed its China GDP growth outlook from 6.0% to 5.6% in 2020, the lowest figure since 1990. It likewise stated that global growth would likely see expansion at about 0.1% lower than initially expected. As a result of widespread concerns on the effects of the virus on global output and growth, the US 10-year benchmark yield fell 36 basis points for the month, closing at a year-to-date low of 1.15%.

In the local economic space, inflation for the month of January averaged 2.9% year-on-year (versus market expectations of 2.7%). A decline in rice prices was more than offset by a rise in fish and gas prices. Despite the mildly negative inflation surprise, yields were driven downward by a sharp decline in global risk appetite due to the international spread of the COVID-19 and its potential effects on the global supply chain, tourism, and aggregate demand for goods and services. Amid falling local and international growth expectations and within-target inflation, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) cut its benchmark policy rate by 25 bps to support market confidence. In a statement made at the end of the month, BSP Governor Benjamin Diokno kept the door open for more policy easing, highlighting his concerns about the impact of the escalating viral outbreak on local economic growth.

Fund Performance. The Fund rose by 0.10% in February, behind its benchmark by 2 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its duration of less than 1 and will continuously look into corporate bonds for yield enhancement.
