OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines was up slightly by 0.50% in September as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields declined by an average of 8 basis points (bps) across the curve.

The month of September saw increased market volatility as US economic data remained mixed despite showing marginal improvement in the housing and manufacturing sectors. The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting held during the month had mostly the same tone as the Jackson Hole Symposium speech last August, basically reiterating that rates at the front-end would remain low for a little longer. The US Congress continued to debate on a new fiscal stimulus package, while President Trump signed a spending bill to keep the government open until year end. Towards the end of the month, investors began to price in more volatility as the US presidential election in early November loomed closer. The 10-year benchmark US treasury yield inched lower by 2 basis points to end September at 0.68%.

In the local space, August inflation data came in at 2.4% year-on-year, below market expectations of 2.8% and terminating a three month upward streak. Slowing food inflation from high base effects more than offset the continued increase in transport prices, with fares adjusting upward, despite stable oil prices, due to pandemic-related regulations mandating lower maximum passenger capacity in public transportation. As expected, the government extended quarantine restrictions in the capital region to the end of October, and passed a PHP140-bn economic stimulus package that subsidizes sectors negatively affected by the pandemic. Despite unemployment easing from its highs in April, business and consumer confidence surveys indicated dim expectations for the fourth quarter of 2020. Comments from Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) Governor Benjamin E. Diokno reiterated the central bank's accommodative stance, suggesting easy monetary policies may remain in place for the next two years.

Fund Performance. The Fund rose by 0.10% in October, ahead of its benchmark by 9 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its duration of less than 1 and will continuously look into corporate bonds for yield enhancement.
