The BPI Invest Philippine Dollar Bond Index Fund is suitable only for investors who:

- Are at least classified as aggressive based on their risk profile
- Have an investment horizon of more than five (5) years

KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Interest Rate Risk: The fund invests in a portfolio of Philippine Sovereign and corporate securities comprising the JP Morgan Asia Credit Philippines Total Return Index, exposing investors to the risk of loss arising from a rise in interest rates, which generally causes fixed income security prices to decline. Factors/ events that may lead to a rise interest rates include adverse market conditions, issuer-specific factors/ events and/ or negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.

Liquidity Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the fund's inability to convert security holdings to cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a highly disadvantageous price due to limited buyers/ sellers in the market, low trading volumes or market disruptions, among other reasons/ factors.

Related Party Risk: Investors are exposed to actual or potential conflicts of interest in the handling of related party transactions by the Trustee, specifically, the execution of trade transactions with related counterparties.

Credit/Default Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the failure of the borrower/ debt issuer to make timely interest and/ or principal payments on its deposit liabilities, loans, bonds or other debt instruments due to a deterioration in the borrower's/ issuer's financial condition or external factors and events that may affect its ability to repay financial obligations such as negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.

Index Tracking Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of not being able to achieve a level of return that matches the index being tracked by the fund due primarily to operating and fund management expenses.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines returned 1.81% in January, as the Philippine dollar-denominated bond yield curve made a parallel shift downward due to risk-off sentiment. On average, Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields fell 23.5 basis points.

Risk appetites were strong at the start of January due to the signing of a phase one trade deal between the US and China, a slight upturn in global economic data, and signs of continued generally accommodative monetary policy across major regions. However, sentiment turned negative toward the end of the month as concerns about the coronavirus outbreak and its effect on Chinese and global economic growth became the market focus, catalyzing a rotation into safe-haven assets and fueling speculation of increased monetary policy easing and potential fiscal stimulus in the near future. Despite no policy action or major changes to the US Federal Reserve outlook, the market began pricing in a higher chance of a policy move lower within the year, driving US Treasury yields lower. US government bonds returned 2.4% over the month, with the US 10-year benchmark yield closing out the month of January at 1.51%, 37 basis points lower than its peak at the start of the month.

In the local space, inflation for the month of December came in slightly ahead of market expectations, rising 2.9% year-on-year (vs. market expectations of 2.6%). The uptick was mainly driven by an increase in food prices, specifically fish, as well as an increase in fuel costs which rose faster than expected. While it is still within the BSP's targeted range of 2-4% for the year, inflation may see upward pressure from supply side issues emanating from the Coronavirus crisis. Central Bank Chief Benjamin Diokno came out at month-end stating that a 50bps policy rate cut for the year was still on the table, though the BSP will continue to monitor economic releases so as to assess the appropriate monetary policy response needed.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 1.83% for the month, ahead of the benchmark index by 2 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
