- Have an investment horizon of more than five (5) years

KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Interest Rate Risk: The fund invests in a portfolio of Philippine Sovereign and corporate securities comprising the JP Morgan Asia Credit Philippines Total Return Index, exposing investors to the risk of loss arising from a rise in interest rates, which generally causes fixed income security prices to decline. Factors/ events that may lead to a rise interest rates include adverse market conditions, issuer-specific factors/ events and/ or negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.

Liquidity Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the fund's inability to convert security holdings to cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a highly disadvantageous price due to limited buyers/ sellers in the market, low trading volumes or market disruptions, among other reasons/ factors.

Related Party Risk: Investors are exposed to actual or potential conflicts of interest in the handling of related party transactions by the Trustee, specifically, the execution of trade transactions with related counterparties.

Credit/Default Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the failure of the borrower/ debt issuer to make timely interest and/ or principal payments on its deposit liabilities, loans, bonds or other debt instruments due to a deterioration in the borrower's/ issuer's financial condition or external factors and events that may affect its ability to repay financial obligations such as negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.

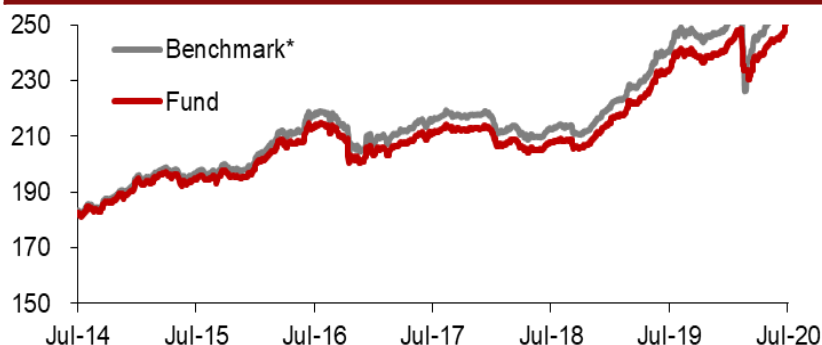

Index Tracking Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of not being able to achieve a level of return that matches the index being tracked by the fund due primarily to operating and fund management expenses.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines returned 3.37% in July as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields fell by an average of 49 basis points (bps) across the curve.

Risk assets such as high-yield debt and emerging market equities continued to outperform the safe-haven US Treasuries as investors saw past the rapidly rising COVID-19 cases in the US and focused more on recovering economic indicators. Despite 2Q2020 US GDP declining by an annualized rate of 32.9% quarter-on-quarter (QoQ)—the largest QoQ decline in GDP since World War 2—retail sales have stabilized somewhat, rebounding from lows seen in April. Economic activity appears to be slowly recovering in other parts of the world as well, with Chinese 2Q2020 GDP up 3.2% year-on-year. Nevertheless, investors continue to be cognizant that a full recovery will only be sustainable if a rise in economic activity does not lead to a significant increase in new cases. Hence, the 10-year US Treasury benchmark yield closed the month slightly lower at 0.53%.

In the local economic space, inflation for the month of June averaged 2.5% year-on-year, above market expectations of 2.2% and rising from May's 2.0% figure. The increase was mainly due to a rise in oil prices, which drove transportation and other related prices higher. Sentiment continued to be driven mainly by developments related to the COVID-19 pandemic, with positive risk sentiment at the start of the month turning negative amidst growing speculation of a potential reimposition of stricter quarantine measures due to a spike in viral transmission. Toward the end of the month, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) announced a percentage-point cut to its reserve requirement ratio (RRR) for thrift banks (bringing the thrift bank RRR to 3%) and rural and cooperative banks (bringing the rural and cooperative bank RRR to 2%), releasing additional liquidity into the economic system. BSP Governor Diokno reiterated the central bank's assessment that inflationary risks would be limited by the effects of the pandemic on domestic and global demand, and that the central bank remained committed to supporting sustainable economic growth using monetary instruments and regulatory relief measures.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 3.23% for the month, behind its benchmark index by 14 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
