OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines declined by 6.76% in March as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields rose by an average of 75.0 basis points (bps) across the curve. Emerging market bonds were sold off as risk-off sentiment pervaded markets amid an exponential increase in coronavirus (COVID-19) cases globally.

It was a volatile month for global bonds with US Treasury yields falling across the curve as market players flocked to safe haven assets. With the World Health Organization officially declaring a pandemic, and the drastic spread of the virus prompting government-initiated lockdowns across most major cities, analysts were once again hard-pressed to reduce their global growth forecasts for the year. In response to growth concerns, the US Federal Reserve launched a series of efforts at supporting the economy including an emergency benchmark interest rate cut on March 3, slashing rates further to near zero mid-month, and re-launching large-scale asset purchases. Despite these dovish moves, sentiment still swung wildly, with the 10-year US Treasury yield going as high as 1.19%, to as low as 0.54%, before ultimately closing March at the 0.67% level. In the local economic space, inflation for the month of February averaged 2.6% year-on-year (versus market expectations of 3.0%). The positive inflation surprise was overshadowed, however, by a decline in global risk appetite due to the global spread of COVID19, with many central banks escalating monetary policy easing in order to mitigate the anticipated economic strain caused by the pandemic. Many countries, including the Philippines, also instituted quarantine measures in this period to mitigate the spread of the virus. Amid falling local and international growth expectations and within-target inflation, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) unveiled a monetary stimulus package, cutting its benchmark policy rate by another 50 bps, announcing PHP300bn-worth of bond-buying, and cutting the bank Reserve Requirement Ratio by 200 bps to bolster market liquidity. In various statements made over the course of the month, BSP Governor Benjamin Diokno projected more policy easing and stimulus, highlighting his concerns about the impact of the escalating viral outbreak on local economic growth.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -6.56% for the month, ahead of its benchmark index by 21 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
