KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Interest Rate Risk: The fund invests in a portfolio of Philippine Sovereign and corporate securities comprising the JP Morgan Asia Credit Philippines Total Return Index, exposing investors to the risk of loss arising from a rise in interest rates, which generally causes fixed income security prices to decline. Factors/ events that may lead to a rise interest rates include adverse market conditions, issuer-specific factors/ events and/ or negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.

Liquidity Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the fund's inability to convert security holdings to cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a highly disadvantageous price due to limited buyers/ sellers in the market, low trading volumes or market disruptions, among other reasons/ factors.

Related Party Risk: Investors are exposed to actual or potential conflicts of interest in the handling of related party transactions by the Trustee, specifically, the execution of trade transactions with related counterparties.

Credit/Default Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of loss due to the failure of the borrower/ debt issuer to make timely interest and/ or principal payments on its deposit liabilities, loans, bonds or other debt instruments due to a deterioration in the borrower's/ issuer's financial condition or external factors and events that may affect its ability to repay financial obligations such as negative developments in domestic and global political and economic conditions.

Index Tracking Risk: Investors are exposed to the risk of not being able to achieve a level of return that matches the index being tracked by the fund due primarily to operating and fund management expenses.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines returned -0.08% in November as Philippine dollar-denominated bonds fell behind the US Treasury gains.

US Treasury Yield curve bull flattened as the short end of the curve rose and long end of the curve fell. US economic data figures in October came out strong with headline Consumer Price Index (CPI) outpacing forecast at +6.2% year-on-year, its highest reading in 31 years. Moreover, US non-farm payrolls rose by 531,000, exceeding the consensus estimates of 450,000. Jay Powell was reappointed for another four-year term as the Federal Reserve (FED) Chair. The FED is expected to begin to taper its $120 billion asset purchase program on December, with purchases set to end by June 2022. Several FED officials have expressed their view on speeding up the pace of tapering but uncertainty around the Omicron variant could make it less likely in the near term. Finally, US President Joe Biden signed the $550 billion bipartisan infrastructure bill to fund the upgrade of roads, bridges, railways, and deploy electronic vehicle charging stations across the country. The 10-year US Treasury benchmark yield hit a high of 1.66% this month, and ended the month at 1.44% (down by 11 basis points MoM).

In the local economic space, October inflation further eased to 4.6% year-on-year, as the rise in food and transport prices slowed. The lower figure was a welcome development as there were speculations that inflation was not transitory, though some analysts continued to warn that this was just a blip and higher prices ought to be expected moving forward, given elevated global oil prices. Meanwhile, the country's GDP growth came in at +7.1% year-on-year, beating the consensus estimate of 4.8%. Growth was driven by the industrial service sectors, while the agricultural sector lagged due to bad weather and the African Swine Fever outbreaks. Though growth has proven robust in recent quarters, analysts believe there is room for the central bank to keep rates accommodative. Sure enough, during its Monetary Board meeting last November 18, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) kept its policy rate at a record low, citing the need for continued monetary support for the economy. It likewise cut its projected 2022 inflation forecast to 4.3% from 4.4% originally.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -0.12% in November, outperforming its benchmark by 2 bps. Year-to-date, it underperformed the benchmark by 18 basis points with a return of -0.73%.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
