OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines fell 0.43% in September as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields rose an average of 3 basis points across the curve.

The US Treasury yield curve steepened with increasing expectations of global monetary easing due to lackluster economic data and the persistence of trade fears. With US second-quarter GDP growth down to 2% from 3.1% in the first quarter, a marked slowdown in the manufacturing sector, and low consumer confidence, the US Federal Reserve cut rates by 25 basis points, meeting market expectations. With markets pricing in even more easing before the end of the year, the US 10-year benchmark yield rose 17 bps to close the month at 1.6646%, while the US 3-month benchmark yield fell 17 bps to close the month at 1.8071%.

In the local space, inflation for the month of August came in-line with market expectations, rising 1.7% year-on-year, still within the central bank's target range of 2-4%. The minimal increase for the month reflected the slower annual rate posted by the food and non-alcoholic beverages component of the index, as well as benign oil prices globally. Benign inflation, coupled with weaker growth released in the previous month, prompted Central Bank Governor Benjamin Diokno to once again hint at policy easing. Nevertheless, monetary authorities will continue to vigilantly monitor economic data so as to determine an appropriate policy response moving forward.

Fund Performance. The fund returned -0.46% for the month, behind the benchmark index by 3 bps.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
