OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines rallied by 2.45% in June as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields moved lower by an average of 22 basis points across the curve.

US Treasury yields continued to fall as market players digested the US Federal Reserve's overall dovish stance following its policy meeting for the month. Weak jobs data couple with a lower-than-expected May inflation figure likewise drove demand for safe-haven securities. Later during the month, the ongoing trade war between US and China ground to a pause as President Trump and President Xi reached a grudging truce following the G20 summit. Recurring concerns on the economic impact of the trade war globally brought down the benchmark 10-year US Treasury yield to as low as 1.98% before bouncing back to close June at the 2.01% level.

On the local front, inflation for the month of May came in above market expectations, rising to 3.2% year-on-year, but still within the central bank's target range of 2-4%. Despite slowing core inflation, higher vegetable and fruit prices due to the effects of El Niño were enough to push the food basket (and thus the headline figure) higher. In response to the uptick in inflation, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas reaffirmed its commitment to data dependence by holding the policy rate steady at 4.5%, defying market expectations of a 25-bp cut. Moving forward, monetary authorities will continue to vigilantly monitor economic data so as to determine an appropriate policy response.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 2.29% for the month, behind the benchmark index by 17 bps.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
