OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The BPI Government Bond Index fell by 0.80% in January even as yields fell by an average of 8 basis points across the curve. However, the longer end of the curve went up, with the 10- and 20-year tenor bucket yields rising by 51 and 76 basis points, respectively. Compared to the month of December, peso-denominated government bonds were more actively traded with an average daily volume of Php13.08 billion. Trades were mostly seen on the liquid securities such as the newly-issued 5-year RTB5-11, and the shorter-tenored 3-year RTB 3-8.

The Bureau of the Treasury's two FXTN auctions during the month saw lukewarm demand as investors looked to trim positions amid expectations of rising interest rates globally. The first was a new 10-year FXTN issuance, which was fully rejected by the BTR. The auction was undersubscribed with total bids amounting to only Php18.676 billion relative to the Php20 billion auction size. This also marked the fifth straight failed auction since November 27, 2017.

The second auction, a new 3-year (FXTN3-23) issuance, was relatively better-received as the government awarded a total of Php14.89 billion out of the Php20 billion offer. Bids amounted to Php39.11 billion. Average yield was at 4.256%, 38 basis points higher than the last 3-year auction in March 2017, and average coupon was at 4.25%.

On the local front, inflation remained steady at 3.3% in December. This brought the full-year average figure to 3.2%, still well within the BSP's targeted range of 2-4% for 2017. The country's GDP grew 6.6% YoY in 4Q17, buoyed by firm domestic demand, particularly from investments. Consequently, the country's GDP for the full year grew by an average of 6.7%, lower than 2016's 6.9% but still among the best in the region. Manageable inflation coupled with continued robust economic growth should allow the BSP to keep its policy rates accommodative.

Fund Performance. The Fund lost 0.21% in January, outperforming the benchmark by 59 bps.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to invest in ABF Philippines Bond Index Fund and the BPI Money Market Fund, to maintain an underweight duration versus the benchmark.
