OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines marginally gained by 0.12% in March even as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields moved higher across the yield curve by an average of 8 basis points. Yields on the longer-tenored RoPs maturing 2040, 2041 and 2042, however, fell by an average of 3 basis points.

Bond prices fell at the beginning of the month as statements from various Federal Reserve (FED) policy makers accelerated policy rate hike expectations from June to as early as the meeting mid-March. As a result, the benchmark 10-year US Treasury bond yield jumped 17 basis points for the first week of the month. Sure enough, during the March 14-15 FOMC meeting, the Federal Reserve hiked policy rates by 25 basis points. This move was somewhat tempered by the FOMC's decision to keep its target of a moderate pace of tightening in 2017 and 2018, as they maintained a total of 3 hikes for each year. Market players had initially feared that the FED could increase its projected hikes to four for the year. Bond prices thus recovered thereafter.

On the local front, inflation for the month of February rose to 3.3%, faster than the 2.7% registered in January. Nevertheless, the uptick was in line with market expectations and still within the BSP's target range of 2-4% for 2017. Manageable inflation, coupled with strong and steady economic growth, allowed the BSP to keep its policy rates steady during its policy meeting concluded on March 23.

Fund Performance. The fund rose by 0.09% in March, beating the benchmark by 3 basis points.

Fund Strategy. The fund will maintain its duration of less than 1 and will continuously look into corporate bonds for yield enhancement.
