Fund Manager's Report

Philippine capital markets had a notable year in 2010 as it was a year of many firsts for the government, following the issuance of its first multi-currency Retail Treasury Bonds and its first Global Peso Notes, and the conduct of its first dollar debt swap. All these forays into deepening the global bond markets, coupled with the fiscal discipline espoused by the new administration, culminated with the Philippines receiving a one-notch sovereign credit upgrade from Standard & Poor's, the first from the rating agency in five years.

Philippine USD-denominated bonds experienced some volatility towards the year-end, amid the risk aversion triggered by several European sovereign credit downgrades and recent tensions in the Korean peninsula. In spite of these events, ROP bond prices still increased by an average of 4.8% causing yields to drop by approximately half a percent in 2010.

Against this backdrop, the Fund continued to track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors of the Fund are advised to pursue a long-term investment.

An index tracker bond fund is suitable for investors who take medium to long-term views and want exposure to Philippine bonds. As a marked-to-market UITF, the Fund's yield, net asset value, and total return may fall as well as rise as a result of interest rate movements and the changes in credit quality of the investments. On redemption of units, an investor may receive an amount less than the original amount of the investment. Liquidity risk also needs to be taken into account.
