OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Asia Credit Index (JACI) Philippines gained 0.62% in April as Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields moved lower across the yield curve by an average of 7 basis points.

Bond prices were well-supported for most of the month as investors adopted a risk-off sentiment amid renewed geopolitical tensions in Syria, aggressive military behavior from North Korea, speculation of rising tensions in US-Russia relations, and the first round of the French presidential elections, concluded on the 23rd of April. Emmanuel Macron, who ran under a centrist political movement, came out ahead in the first round of elections with 23.8% of the total votes. He was closely followed by Marine Le Pen (with 21.5% of the total votes), a staunch advocate of a French exit from the European Union. Investors had initially feared that a Le Pen win could bring turmoil to markets. This, combined with geopolitical concerns globally, caused the yield on the 10-year US Treasury to fall below 2.2% in the weeks prior to the elections.

In the US, rhetoric from various Federal Reserve members during the month remained mostly positive on the economy, with most officials affirming the Fed's projection of another 2 hikes before end-2017.

Local inflation for the month of March rose further to 3.4%, faster than the 3.3% registered in February. Nevertheless, the uptick was in line with market expectations and still within the BSP's target range of 2-4% for 2017. Manageable inflation coupled with strong economic growth should allow the BSP to keep its policy stance accommodative.

Fund Performance. The fund returned 0.61% for the month, underperforming its benchmark by only 1 basis point.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
