OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Chase Asia Total Return Philippines Bond Index (JACI Philippines) increased by 1.01% in April. Philippine dollar-denominated bond yields went down by an average of 7 bps.

The market in April was mainly driven by policy meetings focused on the United States and Japan. The Bank of Japan (BOJ) surprised the market by retaining the current policy stance against the rising expectations of easing. BOJ decided to hold off from further action as negative rates were introduced only two months ago. Nonetheless, further action is still expected within the year.

Alternatively, as widely expected the Federal Reserve (FED) held policy rates as they released neutral statements in their meeting. The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) acknowledged slowing growth and moderating household spending in US but de-emphasized global economic and financial headwinds. Hence, the FED remains watchful of inflation and global developments and remains data-dependent.

Fund Performance. The fund gained 0.84% for the month, missing its benchmark by 17 basis points. The fund underperforms its benchmark by 40 basis points on a year-to-date basis.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track changes to the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
