OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. The JP Morgan Chase Asia Total Return Philippine Bond Index declined by 0.20% in May. Average prices of Philippines dollar denominated bonds were increased by 8 basis points.

The US Federal Reserve reiterated the weak first quarter growth figures, which came out at -0.7%, was largely transitory and would pick up moving forward and that inflation would reach their 2 percent target over time. Policy makers also repeated that monetary policy was data dependent though expectations are for a normalization of interest rates to begin this year.

The European Central Bank reinforced its commitment to quantitative easing this month, looking at potentially front loading purchases to mitigate dwindling liquidity in the summer months. Greece on the other hand continues to be in the limelight as the country struggles with more than €1.7billion worth of debt due this coming June.

Fund Performance. The Fund gained -0.23% for the month compared to its benchmark's -0.20%.

Fund Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track changes to the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index. Investors in a bond fund must be prepared to withstand volatility as higher investment value is typically achieved over the medium to long term.
