Manager's Report

Market Review. Philippine dollar-denominated bonds rallied in February, with ROP bond yields declining by an average of 22 basis points as the price of the ROP 37 increased by as much as 4.30%. The country's macroeconomic fundamentals were once again at the forefront, buoying investor appetite.

The Philippine government reported a full-year deficit figure of PHP164.1 billion for 2013, well within the ceiling of PHP238 billion. In addition, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas reported that dollar inflows from Overseas Filipino Workers reached a record high of US$22.8 billion in 2013, equivalent to a 6.4% full-year growth from last year. The central bank noted the boost given by remittances to economic activity, as it accounted for 8.4% of Philippine Gross Domestic Product (GDP) in 2013. Gross international reserves amounted to US$80.3 billion in February, enough to cover 11.5 months' worth of imports of goods and services.

In the U.S., Fed Chair Janet Yellen spoke of continued tapering while reinforcing the message that rate hikes should not be expected any time soon given the current state of the economy during her testimony to the Senate Banking Committee. The Fed's assurance of a continued accommodative stance spurred risk-on sentiment for emerging markets.

Fund Performance. Against this backdrop, the Fund has returned 3.06% year-to-date.

Strategy. The Fund will continue to closely track the JPMorgan Asia Credit Total Return Index.
