OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Market Review. Asian markets ended the month broadly flat. This was a volatile month where markets initially sold off leading towards the Fed announcement, but subsequently rebounded following the rate hike decision. Oil continued its slide downwards after OPEC decided to raise production quotas to meet current elevated levels; most Asian currencies weakened accordingly. Across Asia, market performance was hugely divergent, Indonesia and Australia registered solid gains, while Thailand and Korea were particularly weak due to foreign outflows.

Fund Performance. The fund underperformed the benchmark this month.

On the negative side, stock selection in Australia hurt the most this month. In particular, we were hurt by two stocks in the Industrial sector, namely Spotless (support services business) and Aurizon (coal freight services) which came out with profit downgrades. For Spotless, the company provided a poor trading update to the market, noting that synergies of recently acquired businesses were taking longer to achieve and also writing off costs relating to two large contracts they were recently unsuccessful in bidding for. For Aurizon, the company provided a downbeat trading update to the market, noting that profits for 1H16 will be lower than the market expected. This is due mostly to one-off costs, however the company also noted lower margins following customer efficiencies. On the country allocation front, the overweight in Thailand detracted as it underperformed.

On the positive side, stock selection in Korea and China helped. In Korea, refining play SK Innovation did well due to improving refining fundamental. Insurance names, including Dongbu Insurance and Hyundai Marine & Fire, continued to perform on the back of positive regulatory moves. In China, property names Sunac China and China Resources Land did well due to positive policy noise regarding inventory reduction.

Fund Strategy. Overall, we think valuations of Asian equities are attractive, but volatilities will remain high. Hence we will take a balanced approach to generate income and capital appreciation. Valuations remain one of the key criteria in our decision making and we continue to have a preference for cyclical yield over defensive yield.
